To Sir Robert Napier the above letters are appeared to contain nothing which was calculated to induce him to modify the resolution he had formed of insisting at all hazards on lain he had formed of insisting at all hazards on theodore's surrender. On the contrary, they rées, rather confirmed the impression that the King oute identified the idea of friendship of the English e de forces with that of support against his enemies. torces with that of support against his enemies.

"It is also necessary." remarks the Commander in Chief.

"If we would assist based sal of these letters an erroneous conception of a fa Theodore's disposition, to read them less in the light of the language which he holds in them than in that of the actions and tenor of his

Thus if will not be forgotten that, while they were being written, the mangled remains of at least 200 of his countrymen who had been butchered by his order, and some of them with his own hand, were exposed to view at the bottom of the rock from which they had we been thrown. The transherous manner in bey which, only a few days before the appearance of ery our army, he plundered the peasants of the with districts round Magdala, who, trusting to his districts round Magdala, who, trusting to his able soleum promise of protection, had always been faithful to him, may be taken as a further illustration of the late King's real character."

-----Californian Agriculture. ards
The area of land in this State (says Mr.

Brooker in his last consular report) is about 100,000,000 acres, and it has been estimated fore that over one-third is adapted to agriculture.

This estimate is undoubtedly a sauguine one, but the capacity of the State for the growth of cereals is enormous, and vast quantities of hilly no- and swamp land, favourably situated, not at present tilled, will be made use of when the it in more desirable lands are occupied. The past year, the total area of land under cultivation did not exceed 1,850,000 acres, and with a harvest below the average, there was for export coof rest below the average, there was for export work 1,000,000 quarters of wheat; it is easy to section—from this what a future the State has before ment her, with an increased population and railway war, communications, as a furnisher of grain to other sions countries; the distance from England and cions France, though great, is of little consequence, since the grain grown here being harvested in such a vices dry condition, as to hear the voyage of from assia. Some to five months without any deterioration be in quality. The absence of rain in the suminer a the months enables the farmers to thresh in the field, and thus gave much labour; the dryness fles," of the grain when harvested causes a good deal is in to be shed, but it is frequently made use of by tarck being left to grow as a "volunteer" crop the tents following year, and it is not uhusual for this the Wheat has been found the past two years to pay better than other grain, and the quantity the of oats and barley sown has not increased matterially in consequence. One serious thing in a ad-connection with farming is, that no attention sinn is paid to rotation of crops; wheat fellows wheat, or barley bartey, without a thought being given to the inevitable exhaustion rince of the soil, sooner or later. However, many assert that the land does not deteriorate by the system, that without the aid of grand or manutes of any kind, they have grown grain for nine or Serten consecutive years, without any diminution of the crop. The grape vine is cultivated in all parts of the State, and although the manufacinsbince of wine has not proved hierative. It is onld, estimated that the quantity will approximate to take 2.001:000 gallons, a good deal of which has however been distilled into brandy, which is found ands to pay better, even with the present excise duty the of one dollar per gallon. Fruits of almost every rope known variety grow incuriantly, apples and min pears are in plantiful supply throughout the sible year; during the past season 180,000 boxes and (averaging 40 lb. each) of peaches were sent to lace. San Francisco, cherries, strawberries, plants, ance arminta were plentiful for several weeks; from

Some transactions The following fortnightly review is from the Overland Trade Report of this date :-Dajez At the close of last fortnight, the improvement that had taken place in the Shanghai and Northern Hong markets, as well as the demand existing there for all descriptions of staple goods, had produced some was signs of life in this market, and a few speculative f the purchases had been made for shipment thither.

Very shortly after the departure of the mail advices were received of still further improvement and a large business doing at Tientsin, and the result was some little excitement here, and moderate purchases by speculators for shipment, but this only lasted for a day or two, and since, the former state of depression and inactivity has reigned without inter-

me. ruption. So far as any native demand is concerned this the native dealers would appear to have described, thom | the trade entirely, and the sanguine hopes enteridens tained of an early revival in business from this quarter, are now seemingly as far off as ever. It seems quite imposible to explain this almost comdete cessation of business, and although the nalives still say there is no demand whatever from the interior, this explaination is, to say the, least becoming rather an unsatisfactory one, taking intoconsideration many facts connected with the abundant crops of the present season, and the very small st me consumption that has thus for taken place of both manufactured inhries the raw materials and Yarn, were as compared with former corresponding periods.

I my The Chinese dealers here, as they freely admit themselves, are carrying very small, if any stocks be a at all themselves, and this is cleary shown by the on of very meagre and conomical purchases they make pains | during each fortnight for the mere supply of local hy requirements. Whatever may be the cause of igion | this stignation in the native market here, it is evicome dent that no material improvement can take place. mutil the difficulty has been removed, and although the present level of prices may be fully maintained by the active business and advancing market at the North, this market must rely mainly upon it own resources for a healthy and permanent return of an active business. Shipments to the north from this port have been comparatively large, thereby reducing the stocks in the hands of importers, and nd on subling an additional element for firmness. Prices ver in have advanced under the speculative demand all Lust | ready referred to, and to-day the market is extremeig so. Iy bouyant with a decided upward tendency.
